You will find that the enclosed proves that I faxed the amendment on September 27, at 3:39 pm. The amendment is 24 pages long. Adding the petition for extension of time, the transmittal form, and the cover sheet, the total transmission should have been 27 pages. Because of a transmission error (for some reason the last 4 pages went through the machine together, if I recall correctly), only 24 pages were transmitted.

I immediately recognized the problem, and re-sent the last three pages, the transmittal form, and the cover sheet (with some added handwriting on it). That transmission was made at 3:58 pm.

This transmission submits (1) the 24 pages of the amendment, (2) the transmittal form, (3) the proof that the first transmission arrived at the PTO, (4) the cover sheet from the second fax transmission, (5) proof from my fax machine that the second transmission arrived at the PTO, and (6) proof from a fax sent by the PTO that the second transmission arrived. (I don't have a fax from the PTO regarding based on first transmission, but that is not unusual. The PTO response fax sometimes fails to arrive, particularly when my fax is active on some other matter).
